BRANCH RICKEY, JR.
Assistant General Manager

All of us who are associated with the Dodgers have a common goal this season—bringing to Brooklyn its first World's Championship. Winning the National League pennant for us has become a stepping stone toward a greater objective—victory in the World Series next fall.

Brooklyn has won three pennants in the past 10 years—and tied for another. But like the championship Brooklyn teams of 1916 and 1920, those of 1941, 1947 and 1949 failed to add World Series laurels to intra-league success.

This 1950 Brooklyn team can well be one of destiny. It has both youth and experience, fine ability and the will to win.

It is to tell you more about the men who make up the Dodgers this season that this booklet has been written. Like its predecessor of 1949, it recalls, too, highlights of former days—a past that is one of baseball's most colorful, written for a community of fans whose loyalty and devotion to their team is legendary.

We sincerely hope that you will find pleasure in this 1950 Dodger Yearbook—and in the performance of the men whose story it tells.

Cordially yours,

Branch Rickey

LEADER

Piloting pennant winners is getting to be a habit with Burton Edwin "Barney" Shotton. He did it in 1947 when, summoned from semi-retirement, he took over the Dodger reins at the outset of the campaign and guided the club to its first National League flag since 1941. With Leo Durocher back at the helm in 1948, Barney served as advisor to minor league managers in the Brooklyn organization until a startling mid-season change saw Durocher move to the rival New York Giants and Shotton return as skipper of the Dodgers. A third place finish was the club's best that year.

Last season, Shotton's first full Brooklyn campaign, the Dodgers wound up a stirring season-long battle with a title-copping 97-57 record for a .630 percentage, the club's top mark since 1942. Under Shotton, Brooklyn teams have compiled a 237-150 (.612) record in regular season National League play, as compared to a 275-187 (.595) over-all showing for the three campaigns.

A lefthand hitting, righthand throwing outfielder in his playing days (1908-1923) Shotton saw service in both major circuits—with St. Louis and Washington in the American League and with the St. Louis Cardinals in the National loop. His active playing career over, Shotton turned to coaching and management in the Cardinal organization. He prepped as a pilot at Syracuse in the International League and graduated to the majors in 1928 with the Phillies. He remained there through 1933, then moved to Cincinnati as coach in 1934. The next seven seasons saw him piloting clubs at Rochester and Columbus. Named the "minor league manager of the year" after leading Columbus to an American Association pennant and Little World Series title in 1941, Shotton returned to the majors as coach of the Cleveland Indians—a post he held for three seasons. He retired the next year—but at his leisure scouted the Florida territory for the Dodgers, and Branch Rickey, his former manager and long-time friend. He rendered invaluable service as advisor at the Dodgers' big post-war training and instructional camp at Sanford, Fla. in 1948, helping many of the returning veterans, some of them destined to star for him in 1947, 1948 and 1949.

Barney, 65 years old last Oct. 18th, was born at Brownheim, Ohio. A winter resident of Florida for many years, he now makes his home at Bartow and there last December 21st he and Mrs. Shotton celebrated their 40th wedding anniversary.

An inveterate hunter and fisherman, Barney leaves his Florida home only when duty calls. A compelling speaker, he is in frequent demand at winter "hot stove" sessions and a three-day period last winter saw him fill banquet engagements at Miami, St. Paul, Minn., and Vero Beach, Fla. in that order.

"That's traveling", you say. Yes, but it's the sort of thing one expects from Barney Shotton—the man who's managed two pennant winners in less than three seasons—and came out of retirement to do it, too!

AND LIEUTENANTS

Serving as Shotton's aides-de-camp for the second straight season are a trio of baseball veterans—Jake Pitler, Milt Stock and Clyde Sukeforth.

Stock, oldest of the three in age and baseball experience, is in his second year as a Dodger coach. Pitler, a former minor league manager and field man, is in his twelfth season with the Dodger organization and his fourth as a Brooklyn coach. Sukeforth, an active player with the Dodgers as recently as 1945, is now in his 25th year in baseball, his 19th in the Dodger system, and his eighth as Brooklyn coach and managerial consultant.

All are former major league players and all have managed minor league clubs. Sukeforth caught for Cincinnati and Brooklyn, Pitler was Pittsburgh's second baseman in 1917, and Stock's major league infield career covered a 13-year span (1914-1926) in which he performed for New York, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Brooklyn—all in the National League.

Milt was the first to turn to managing, leaving Brooklyn in 1926 to take over the field leadership of the Mobile club of the Southern League. In succeeding years he piloted teams in the Texas, Southeastern, Middle Atlantic, Penn State Association, South Atlantic and Piedmont circuits, frequently doing double duty in the front office and on the field from 1931 to 1943 when he returned to the major leagues as coach for the Chicago Cubs.

Pitler began his managerial career in professional ball at Elmira in the NYP League in 1929 and before joining the Dodger coaching staff in 1947 at various times led clubs at Hazleton, Pa., Springfield, Ohio, Scranton, Pa., Portsmouth, Ohio, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jeannette, Pa., Olean, N. Y. and Newport News, Va.

"Sukey" made his managerial debut at Leaksville in the Bi-State circuit in 1936, moved to Clinton (I-I-I) in 1937, spent the 1938 and 1939 campaigns at Elmira and then moved up to Montreal for three seasons starting with 1940.

Pitler, a pepper-pot, handles the first base coaching for Manager Shotton. Stock is the third base flagman and Sukey, dean of the group in point of service to the organization, acts as Shotton's field emissary in addition to supervising the pitchers.

Shotton's men in every sense of the word, they form with him a smooth-working unit that is both effective and efficient. With Manager Shotton they have a single objective for 1950—a pennant-winning, World Series champion at Ebbets Field.

FACTS ABOUT YOUR FAVORITES

1949 NATIONAL LEAGUE CHAMPS

They came from all parts of the United States, these 1950 Dodgers, but when they reported to Vero Beach this March 1st, 39 strong, they shared a common goal—a strong desire to “make” the Brooklyn club.

All knew when they reported that only 25 could possibly be with the Dodgers throughout the National League season. Some, up for the first time, realized their need for further minor league experience—but hoped nonetheless, for the “break” that would win them places on the parent club. Vero Beach was no place for complacency—veterans, eager to retain their Dodger berths, sensed that, too. All in all, they made an interesting group—these 1950 Dodgers.

Twenty of the Vero Beach group were among the 25 players who wore Brooklyn uniforms in the 1949 World Series. The other 19 were minor leaguers for all or part of the 1949 season. Ten had never appeared in a major league contest.

No less than 22 different states were represented in their birthplaces. Seven hailed from New York (including four born in Brooklyn). Five are natives of California, four are Pennsylvanians by birth. Indiana, Kansas, New Jersey and Texas each have two representatives on the squad. Fifteen other states have one native son each—Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Iowa, Illinois, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Tennessee, Washington and Wisconsin.

The average playing weight of the 39 performers is 181.5 lbs. The lightest weighed 143, the heaviest 220. Six players were in the 200-plus category.

The average height is an even 6 feet. The range is from 5'7½" to 6'5" with 21 of the group being 6' or over. The pitchers as a group are the tallest, averaging 6'1", the catchers, the shortest, 5'9½".

In the past three seasons the club that represented Brooklyn in actual league play was the youngest in the loop and it appears that the 1950 team will follow that pattern. The average age as of March 1st for the 39-man squad was 26.08. The 40-man 1949 squad averaged 26.22 years at reporting time.

The average ages for the different positions are almost identical, the pitchers' average being 26.33, the infielders' 26.24, the catchers' 26.06 and the outfielders', the youngest group, at 25.2. The youngest man on the squad will not reach his 20th birthday until the final month of the season. The oldest Dodger will celebrate his 33rd birthday after the campaign closes. Only seven on the roster are in the 30-plus age bracket.

The 39 Dodgers have spent a total of 203 seasons in professional ball, an average of 5.2 seasons per player (average time in the majors 2.3 seasons per man). The average Dodger spent only 2.5 years in the minors before making his major league debut.

It is from these men that the 1950 Dodgers have been chosen—worthy successors to teams that have won two pennants in the last three years. They think they'll win another. Time will tell.

BROOKLYN BRANCHES

Making major leaguers—that's the primary function of the 24 minor league clubs spread out from coast to coast and from Florida to Quebec which this season comprise the extensive Brooklyn organization.

More than incidental importance, of course, is attached also to successful performances on the field, judging by records made by Dodger affiliated minor league clubs in recent years. Actually the development of major league prospects and the winning of pennants go hand in hand. That the efforts of the Brooklyn organization in both fields are not unavailing is proven by the fact that in the closing weeks of the 1949 season and in the off season which followed 17 players graduated from Dodger farms to the bigtime—after a season in which Brooklyn-associated clubs compiled an over-all .559 won and lost percentage for the second straight year.

It is significant that three of Brooklyn's top five minor league affiliates finished first in their respective league races in 1949 with all five winding up highly successful campaigns in first division berths. Two of the five won post-season play-offs and Montreal for the third time in four seasons represented the International League in the Junior World Series. Hollywood, a new-comer to the Dodger fold last year, made its debut an auspicious one, capturing pennant and play-off honors in the Pacific Coast League.

In the two-week period preceding the Oct. 15 trading deadline last fall, 14 players advanced to major league rosters from Brooklyn "branches". Eight moved up to Brooklyn, six others to rival American and National League teams. Three more men graduated during the annual major league selection period.

Highly regarded Dodger organization products found on the rosters of other major league clubs this spring included Sam Jethroe and Bob Addis, with the Boston Braves; Irv Noren, with the Washington Senators; Dan O'Connell, Pittsburgh; Kermit Wahl, Philadelphia A's; and Alfonso Carrasquel, Chicago White Sox.

Indicative of the productivity of the Brooklyn system is the fact that of the 25 men who were eligible to play for Brooklyn in the 1949 World Series only 12 were holdovers from the club that won the National League pennant just two seasons earlier—that and the fact that all but one of the 1949 Dodgers were either developed within the Brooklyn organization or came to it in trades for players who were "home grown".

Heading the Dodgers' far-flung minor league operations is Fresco Thompson, who doubles in the spring as field director of the Brooks' training base at Vero Beach. Working closely with Thompson as director of Brooklyn scouting activities is L. M. "Mickey" McConnell who co-ordinates a nationwide talent-hunting program unmatched for comprehensiveness. They and the men who work with them are entrusted with the development of the players who make up baseball's biggest organization.

DODGERTOWN DAYS

Baseball's most unique—and most productive—major league training camp! That's Dodgertown, Vero Beach, Fla., spring home of the Brooklyn Dodgers and the 650 affiliated minor leaguers who annually go through their paces there.

Dodgertown is unusual in that it is both a conditioning center and an instructional institute. Established in 1948 for use by Brooklyn's farm clubs, Dodgertown one season later became the spring training headquarters for the parent Brooks themselves, too. From it emerged in 1949 the pennant-winners-to-be Dodgers and most of the Dodgers-in-the-making who performed in the minors last season.

In operation this year from March 1st when the Dodgers reported until April 25th when the last of the minor league squads was scheduled to depart, Dodgertown combines the most modern innovations with time-tested formulas for the rapid development of future major leaguers.

Staffed by experienced instructors selected from among Brooklyn field and scouting personnel including Dodger manager Burt Shotton and his coaches, Dodgertown offers specialized teaching to the many fine young players who assemble there each spring.

Nowhere in baseball is Dodgertown duplicated. And this despite the fact that other organizations frankly admit that they have patterned their camps after it. First to try this type of camp, the Dodgers emphasis is first, last, and always on quality, not quantity. It's only incidentally that one hears the word "most". More often the accent's on "best".

Roy Campanella

It has taken only one and a half seasons of National League play for ROY CAMPANELLA to establish himself as the loop's best catcher . . . offensively and defensively he was tops in 1949, leading the league's receivers in batting and fielding percentage, as well as in many specialized departments . . . voting by the Baseball Writers at the season's conclusion made it official that he was the best in the majors . . . Roy previously had been selected to play in the annual mid-season All-Star Game . . . since joining the Dodgers has thrown out 45 of the 70 baserunners who have attempted to steal . . . an all-around athletic star in his high school days in Philadelphia, he played with touring clubs before beginning his organized baseball career . . . in 1946 the Dodger-affiliated Class B Nashua club signed him . . . his progress was fast and in 1947 as a Montreal Royal he was rated the International League's best catcher . . . started with the Dodgers in 1948, was optioned to St. Paul, went on homerun spree and was recalled in July . . . Roy is married, the father of four children, Joyce, Beverly, David and Roy, Jr.

Charles Bruce Edwards

Joining the Dodgers in mid-season of 1946 from the Southern Association Mobile club, CHARLES BRUCE EDWARDS quickly won recognition as an outstanding major league catcher . . . in fact he tied a National League record shortly after reporting to the Brooks (on Aug. 15, 1946) by making three assists in one inning . . . in his first complete season with the Dodgers in 1947 Bruce was selected on the All-Star team and was a vital cog in the pennant machine, hitting .295, leading the league's catchers in put-outs and double plays . . . handicapped by a sore arm in the 1948 and 1949 seasons, he nonetheless was a valuable team man, displaying unusual versatility . . . he played third base, the outfield and first base, in addition to catching during the past two campaigns . . . proved that his bat has lost none of its power by hitting one homerun for every 18.5 times at bat, the best rate on the club in 1949 . . . Bruce is rated one of the game's best in chasing the elusive foul fly . . . is the possessor of a fine war record, with three years in the Armed Forces, including 18 months of overseas duty, and received four battle stars . . . Bruce is unmarried.

Steve Lembo

One of the many Brooklyn boys who are making good in the Dodger organization, STEPHEN NEAL LEMBO is a product of the famous Parade Grounds' Kiwanis League . . . with Montreal last season, his fifth in pro ball, Steve won All-Star honors, batted .291 in 90 games . . . Lembo first came to the Dodgers' attention in 1943, won recognition as a major league prospect at the club's wartime Bear Mountain (N. Y.) training base the following spring . . . he opened that season with Newport News, then went to Zanesville in the Ohio State League where he batted .314 . . . he spent most of the next two seasons in the Navy, returning late in 1946 in time to play 34 games for Johnstown . . . he made rapid strides in 1947 at Newport News and at Pueblo the following season . . . with the latter club he drove in seven runs in one game with a homer, double and two singles in four trips to the plate . . . Steve has a real shotgun arm . . . loves to throw . . . he attended New Utrecht high in Brooklyn . . . Tommy Brown, Dodger outfielder, also was playing at the Parade Grounds when Steve was attracting attention there . . . Steve is single.

Dan Bankhead

A 44-12 won and lost record against New England, American Association, and International League rivals over the past two seasons won DANIEL ROBERT BANKHEAD a second chance with the Dodgers this spring . . . Dan first joined the Brooklyn club in the closing stages of the 1947 campaign after starring as a pitcher-outfielder for the Memphis Red Sox of the Negro American League . . . he had no decisions in four mound appearances for the Dodgers that season, but distinguished himself in his first time at bat in the majors by blasting a homer into the leftfield stands at Ebbets Field . . . sent to Nashua in 1948 for further seasoning, Dan paced the Class B New England circuit in strikeouts and victories (one of them a no-hitter) and finished the campaign by winning four games for St. Paul in the last two weeks of the American Association race . . . Dan is married, has a daughter Waillullah, and two young sons—Daniel Herbert, age one, and William Felix, whose arrival on March 2nd this spring, delayed Dan's arrival at Vero Beach.

Jack Banta

One of the outstanding pitching developments of the 1949 Brooklyn season was the effective brand of hurling displayed by JACK KAY BANTA . . . Jack contributed 10 victories to the Dodger total, his most important triumph coming on the final day of the campaign . . . he tossed 4 $\frac{1}{3}$ innings of scoreless ball in a relief role at Philadelphia that day as the Brooks clinched the pennant with a ten-inning victory . . . in his first complete major league season he topped the loop (among hurlers with at least 100 innings pitched) in strikeout average per nine-inning game, his average being 5.74 . . . in hits allowed he ranked second best in the loop (behind Barney) yielding an average of only 7.35 blows per contest . . . Jack excelled in relief pitching giving up only 21 earned runs in 89 innings for an ERA of 2.12 . . . he pitched for Montreal in each of his five minor league seasons and his record for the Canadian club in 1947 and 1948 was particularly brilliant . . . he fell short of major league standards in brief trials with Brooklyn in 1947 and 1948, but he proved himself more than ready by his 1949 performance . . . Jack is married.

Rex Barney

Consistency was not the keynote of REX EDWARD BARNEY'S pitching in the 1949 season . . . however, 1950's another year and Rex is hopeful of delivering the same sort of pitching that he displayed so consistently in the last half of the 1948 season . . . a no-hitter against the Giants, Sept. 9th at the Polo Grounds was the high mark of his 1948 performance and his career to date . . . last year he came close to duplicating that feat on two occasions . . . an eighth-inning single (by Cavarretta) was all that separated him from another no-hitter in a game against the Cubs . . . he also pitched a two-hitter against Chicago . . . Rex's life-time N. L. record of 7.15 hits per nine innings is the best of any active pitcher in the loop . . . Rex joined the Brooklyn organization directly from the Omaha (Neb.) high school ranks in 1943 when only 19 . . . he started with Durham, N. C., moved up to Montreal and finished the season with Brooklyn . . . late that year he was in the army, then saw overseas action in the ETO and was awarded two battle stars and the Bronze Star . . . Rex is married, has a daughter, Christine Louise, who will be two years old shortly after the start of the season.

Ralph Branca

Even though RALPH THEODORE BRANCA is the possessor of a won-lost record of 48-26 for the past three seasons he has yet to measure up to the great expectations Dodger officials hold for him . . . his inability to win in the latter half of the 1949 season after a fine start is the cause for some concern . . . Ralph pitched a number of effective games in the latter stages of the season, but hard-luck dogged him and he was unable to win consistently . . . his great start was an important factor in the club's 1949 success as he accounted for 10 (including seven complete games) of the first 41 Dodger victories, while losing only once . . . during his three years as a regular Brooklyn starter he has been an outstanding strikeout pitcher, ranking second in the loop in 1947, fifth in 1948 and fourth best in 1949 . . . in 1947 the Baseball Writers voted him a spot on the Major League All-Star team . . . in both 1948 and 1949 Ralph was named as a N. L. representative for the annual mid-season All-Star Game . . . starting his career under Jake Pitler at Olean in 1943, he saw service with Montreal and St. Paul during the next two seasons before making the major league grade in 1946 . . . he attended New York University (two years), starring in basketball as well as baseball . . . a fine singer, he's made stage, television and radio appearances . . . is one of 13 children, two others of whom have played professional ball . . . is unmarried.

Carl Erskine

CARL DANIEL ERSKINE starts the 1950 season boasting an eight-game winning streak, as he won all eight of his decisions with the Dodgers after his recall from Fort Worth in mid-July . . . his last loss in 1949 came in his final Fort Worth contest on July 11th . . . his only Brooklyn defeat last season was in the one game he pitched before being optioned early in the year . . . Carl was the biggest winner on the Dodger staff down the final stretch, copping five games (four of them in nine days) in September . . . was used chiefly in relief, his outstanding effort being a seven-inning, hitless, runless relief chore against Boston . . . in 23 innings as a starter he allowed only 13 hits . . . since beginning his professional career with Danville during the 1946 season, he has the exceptionally high winning percentage of .693 based upon 61 victories, 27 defeats . . . in 716 innings of hurling in organized ball he has never committed a balk . . . Carl was a standout high school and semi-pro pitcher in his native Anderson, Ind. . . after graduation he went into the service and was in the Navy for a year . . . upon his discharge the Dodgers' Danville club signed him and he has been a winner ever since . . . Carl is married and is the father of a young son, Carl Daniel, Jr.

Joe Hatten

1949 marked the fourth season in as many years with the Dodgers in which JOSEPH HILARIAN HATTEN won more games than he lost . . . his four-year major league record is 56 victories, 37 losses for a percentage of .602, two points better than the Brooklyn club's won and lost mark for the same period . . . Joe has a lifetime winning record against six of the seven opposing N. L. clubs, and is below .500 only against St. Louis . . . he scored only one win over the Cards last season, but that was a big one, coming in the final game of the year between the clubs, and keeping the Dodgers in the pennant race, just one-half game behind St. Louis . . . Joe has shown exceptional ability in curbing rival fencebusters in an era of heavy homerun production . . . in his four seasons he has allowed only 43 homers in 843 innings, an average of one for every 19.6 frames . . . Joe started in pro ball with Crookston (Minn.) in 1939, and fanned 299 hitters in 244 innings . . . came into the Brooklyn organization from Minneapolis in a trade for Van Mungo in the 1941-42 off-season . . . pitched briefly for Montreal in 1942 . . . then spent almost four years in the Navy . . . Joe is the club's oldest player in years (will be 33 next Nov. 7th) . . . is married and the father of a girl, Donna Marie, born during the 1949 season.

Phil Haugstad

A major leaguer in his second season in pro ball (1947), PHILIP DONALD HAUGSTAD is now in his fourth campaign as a Dodger . . . the American Association's co-leader in wins last season (22), Phil has never been under the .500 mark since breaking in with Grand Forks in 1946 . . . in each of his five seasons in pro ball Phil has granted less than one hit per inning . . . Haugstad first came to Brooklyn late in the 1947 campaign after winning 16, losing only six at St. Paul . . . he was credited with contributing one victory toward the Dodgers' 1947 pennant-winning total . . . Phil started the following campaign with Brooklyn, went back to St. Paul in May . . . he spent the full 1949 season with the Saints on option from the Brooks . . . Phil is married, has an infant daughter, Judy Yvonne, who was just six weeks old when her daddy left home for camp this spring.

Clem Labine

The American Association's No. 1 rescuer last season, CLEMENT WALTER LABINE is a 1950 newcomer to the Dodgers' roster . . . a 12-6 hurler for St. Paul in 1949, Clem went to the mound 64 times last season, all but once as a reliever . . . no other Association flinger figured in more than 54 games . . . as Clem had drawn 40 pitching assignments at Pueblo in 1948, his two-year games pitched total is an impressive 104 . . . in five seasons of pro ball since breaking into the national pastime in 1944, Labine at various times has performed in the Piedmont, South Atlantic and Tri-State circuits in addition to the Western League and the American Association . . . he was an All-State high school baseball and basketball star at Woonsocket, R. I., later attended Rhode Island State College as a physical education major . . . Clem's baseball career was interrupted by a stretch in the armed forces as a paratrooper, a year of which was spent overseas . . . he came back from the service late in the 1946 season, divided duty with three clubs the following year, "finding" himself at Asheville—where he compiled a 6-0 record . . . Clem is married, has one son—Clement, Jr.—three years old.

Billy Loes

Up with the Dodgers after only one season of minor league competition, WILLIAM (BILLY) LOES last year compiled a 16-5 record at Nashua and Fort Worth . . . one of two bonus players now on the Brooklyn roster, Billy is a product of Long Island City's Bryant High for which he tossed five no-hitters in two seasons, four of them in 1948—his senior year . . . Loes began his professional career with Nashua (Class B) in 1949, had won 11 and lost only three by mid-season when promoted to Fort Worth (Class AA) where he added five more triumphs while suffering but two setbacks . . . among his successes at Nashua were four shutouts, one of them a nine-inning no-hitter against Fall River last June 1st . . . Billy's Fort Worth wins included his fifth whitewash effort of the year . . . one of several metropolitan New York area players on the Dodger roster, Loes was selected as the Most Valuable player in the New York Journal-American's 1947 sandlot All-Star game, was a member of the Brooklyn-Long Island team in the "Brooklyn vs. the World" series the following year . . . Billy, second youngest Dodger, is unmarried.

Mal Mallette

The Dodgers' much-publicized "sleeper" draft, lefthander MALCOLM FRANCIS MALLETT is making his debut as a National Leaguer this season . . . selected by Brooklyn from Sacramento of the Pacific Coast League last winter, Mal broke into pro ball as a New York Yankee farmhand in 1943 but saw three years' military service before reporting for active baseball duty late in 1946 . . . a nemesis of Dodger-affiliated clubs in 1946 (Piedmont League), 1947 (International League), 1948 (American Association and International League) and 1949 (Pacific Coast League), Mal's selection by the Dodgers was strongly urged by Fred Haney, Hollywood pilot . . . at one stage of the 1948 campaign while pitching for Newark, Mal chalked up 15 $\frac{2}{3}$ consecutive hitless innings in two successive games, yet fell short of hurling a no-hit game . . . he is a graduate of Syracuse University where he majored in Journalism . . . says greatest baseball thrill was four-hit exhibition game triumph over Yankees for Newark in 1947 . . . is married.

Morris Martin

An injury suffered in a Vero Beach workout this spring interrupted MORRIS WEBSTER MARTIN'S second bid for a berth on the Dodger pitching staff and sent him to the sidelines for two weeks . . . Morrie divided service in 1949 between Brooklyn and St. Paul, had an over-all 4-9 record . . . Martin came up to the Dodgers a year ago after starring for St. Paul during the 1948 American Association pennant race and the play-offs that followed . . . he made his pro debut in 1941 with Grand Forks of the Northern League, moved up to the Saints the following spring with a 16-7 record, spent 1942 at St. Paul, then three years in the service . . . Morrie was wounded in action in Germany, a machine gun bullet hitting him in the left thigh . . . he came back to baseball in 1946 with Asheville of the Tri-State League, pitched brilliantly there and finished with a 14-6 W and L mark . . . 1947 saw him with St. Paul and Danville where he compiled a combined 5-4 record . . . his effective hurling was a major factor in the Saints' 1948 pennant and play-off successes . . . in the deciding play-off series with Columbus that fall Morrie figured prominently in five of the seven games played . . . Martin is married, daughter Kathleen Ruth is going on three years of age.

Pat McGlothlin

A consistent winner is rangy righthander EZRA MAC (PAT) MCGLOTHIN whose five-year record in professional ball shows 67 victories, 41 defeats . . . in each year he's won more than he's lost . . . Pat made his major league debut with the Dodgers in 1949, breaking even in two decisions before being optioned to Montreal . . . for the Royals he copped 13, dropped seven games . . . an ailing arm which troubled him last season responded to surgery during the winter months and Pat gives promise of regaining the effectiveness which marked his efforts for St. Paul in 1948 . . . among his 14 triumphs for the Saints that season was a 7-0 no-hit win over the slugging Milwaukee Brewers in which two walks spoiled his chances for a perfect game . . . Pat broke into pro ball in 1942 with Elizabethton of the Appalachian League, then spent three seasons in the Navy . . . while in the service acquired quite a reputation as Ted Williams' nemesis, fanning the famed slugger five times in a 19 inning game in which he went the distance . . . McGlothlin attended the University of Tennessee, plans a career in radio journalism when playing days are over . . . he's married . . . has an infant son, Michael Stephen.

* Tied for league lead.

Don Newcombe Seldom has a first-year pitcher in the majors had as impressive a season as did DONALD NEWCOMBE in 1949 . . . called up from the Montreal club late in May, Don made his first appearance in a relief role May 20th at St. Louis . . . two days later he tossed a five-hit shut-out at Cincinnati in his first start . . . less than two months later he was selected and pitched for the N. L. team in the annual All-Star Game . . . with five shutouts to his credit he tied for the N. L. lead (had pitched two shutouts for Montreal before joining the Dodgers) . . . also led the league in a hitting department by obtaining 22 safe hits, the top total for a twirler . . . Don enjoyed the season's longest streak of consecutive scoreless innings recorded by a N. L. flinger (32) . . . included in the streak were consecutive shutouts against three of the loop's better hitting clubs—St. Louis, Pittsburgh, and New York . . . won at least two games against each rival club . . . displayed consistency by winning four games a month in June, July, August and September . . . ranked second in the league in strikeouts, with 149, only two less than Spahn's total . . . big Don pitched 58 innings less than did Spahn . . . his brilliant, though losing, 1-0 game in the first contest of the World Series was one of the highlights of the post-season series . . . started in pro ball with Nashua in 1946, and had Campanella as his battery-mate . . . had two excellent seasons there before starring for Montreal in 1948 . . . Don is married.

Ervin Palica

With two complete seasons of major league experience under his belt ERVIN MARTIN PALICA hopes that 1950 will prove to be the best year yet of his brief baseball career . . . however, his efforts in 1948 and 1949 (as the youngest player on the club in both years) were by no means unimpressive . . . in each season he was the busiest relief hurler on the squad in number of games and in innings pitched . . . his 1949 record in relief was 48 games, 92 innings . . . Erv's total of 49 games during the season was the third high in the loop . . . he was the stingiest pitcher on the staff in allowing home-runs, yielding only six, or one every 16.2 innings . . . the mid-summer heat of July seemed to agree with him as he was used in 15 of the Dodgers' 29 games during that month and accounted for five of their 12 victories . . . at one stage he pitched in five consecutive games . . . he did particularly well against the Giants, beating them four times without a loss and allowing only 10 hits, three runs (two earned) in 23 $\frac{2}{3}$ innings . . . Erv was signed by the Brooklyn organization after appearing in the 1944 All-American boys' game . . . in spite of his youth he needed only three years of minor league experience before making the big league grade with the Dodgers in 1948 . . . he is considered one of the club's fastest runners . . . Erv is one of the unmarried Dodgers.

Clarence Podbielan

A high school pitching sensation when only 15, CLARENCE ANTHONY (POD) PODBIELAN was signed to his first professional contract in 1940 . . . released by the Twins Falls club before the Pioneer League campaign opened that season, Pod two years later contracted with the Brooklyn-affiliated Santa Barbara club of the Class C California circuit . . . his entry into military service that year delayed his debut in Dodger organization livery until 1946 when he won 14, lost 9 for Santa Barbara . . . he made the jump from C to AA the following year with Fort Worth, bettering his 1946 record with an even more impressive 14-8 won and lost performance and a 2.38 ERA . . . advanced to Montreal in 1948, he had a 13-8 record, though used most often in rescue roles . . . promoted to the Brooklyn club on the strength of his work at Montreal, Pod appeared in seven games for the Dodgers in the early weeks of the 1949 campaign, being charged with one setback . . . optioned to Montreal he failed to hit his 1948 stride and wound up the year with his first below-.500-season (9-13) . . . Pod is a recent benedict.

Willie Ramsdell

Only once in nine seasons in pro ball—his first (1938)—has JAMES WILLARD RAMSDELL finished below the .500 mark . . . last season pitching for Hollywood on option from the Dodgers "Willie the Knuck" topped Pacific Coast League hurlers in effectiveness with a 2.60 ERA . . . he first came up to Brooklyn from Fort Worth in 1947 after winning 21 and losing only five for the "Cats" . . . started the 1948 season with the Dodgers but later pitched for Mobile and Fort Worth, too . . . Willie has been a 20-game winner in four different seasons—1940, 1941, 1942 and 1947 . . . reached his peak in 1941 with 25 . . . with Fort Worth in 1947 he enjoyed a 13-game winning streak during which he defeated every rival Texas League club at least once . . . is married.

Preacher Roe

In most respects the 1949 season was the best of his major league career for ELWIN CHARLES (PREACHER) ROE . . . his winning percentage of .714 was the best among N. L. pitchers who twirled at least 10 complete games . . . in ERA he ranked third in the loop with a mark of 2.79 . . . a strikeout total of 109 gave him a fourth place ranking, tied with teammate Branca . . . in night games he rated as the league's best, winning eight, losing two, with three of the victories being against the Cards . . . his season's record against St. Louis was 4-1, including two shutouts . . . in each of the last two series against the Cards he contributed a key victory . . . Preacher also had a 4-1 record against Boston . . . against first division clubs he won 10, lost 4 . . . in his two Brooklyn seasons he has displayed outstanding control, walking only 1.67 hitters per nine-inning game in 1948, and 1.86 per game in 1949 (second best in the league) . . . he chalked up the only Dodger win in the 1949 World Series, with a brilliant 1-0 decision over the Yanks in the second game . . . broke into pro ball with three-inning job for the Cardinals in 1938 . . . Preacher is a graduate of Harding College (Searcy, Ark.) . . . has taught high school mathematics . . . he is married . . . has two young sons, Elwin, Jr. and Thomas Clay.

Wayne Belardi

Youngest of the 1950 Dodgers, CARROLL WAYNE BELARDI will not be 20 years old until next September 5th . . . after only one season of pro ball, Wayne—as he prefers to be called—has seen action in three leagues and contracted with five different clubs . . . first signed as a bonus player to a Santa Barbara (Class C) contract early last year, he was moved to Nashua (Class B) before the 1949 campaign began, advanced to Greenville (Class A) in mid-year and then to St. Paul (AAA) where he finished the season . . . he graduated to the Dodgers last fall . . . Wayne hit an impressive .307 at Nashua, .310 at Greenville and a creditable freshman .242 at St. Paul where eight of his 24 safeties went for extra bases . . . a slugger-type hitter, Wayne made his 126 hits last season good for 209 total bases and, surprisingly, went down swinging only 50 times in 431 AB's . . . Wayne graduated from prep school in June 1948 after starring there in baseball, basketball and football . . . he matriculated at the University of Santa Clara, spent one semester there before reporting to Vero Beach in the spring of 1949 . . . an outfielder in his prep school and American Legion junior baseball days, Wayne quickly adapted himself to the initial sack, seems destined for stardom there . . . he is unmarried.

Rocky Bridges

A candidate for membership in the Dodger infield corps after only three seasons of professional play, EVERETT LAMAR BRIDGES (JR.) is making up for lost time . . . his start in organized ball was twice-delayed—first by a call to the colors in 1946, then by a broken leg suffered in spring training the following year, that kept him out of action until the final month of the season . . . when he did rejoin the Class C Santa Barbara club, he had difficulty finding his batting eye and wound up hitting only .183 in 39 games . . . promoted to Greenville of the Class A South Atlantic League despite his unimpressive 1947 B.A., "Rocky", as he's best known, upped his percentage to .251 and took part in every one of his club's 154 games . . . advanced to Montreal last season, Bridges started slowly but stood out in the closing months of the campaign, fielding brilliantly and hitting so effectively that he finished the season with a .275 mark . . . a shortstop previously, "Rocky" was shifted to second at Montreal last year, teaming with Bobby Morgan to form one of the Shaughnessy circuit's top keystone combinations . . . Bridges is one of the Dodgers' bachelor boys.

Kevin Connors

One of the most colorful Dodgers is KEVIN JOSEPH (CHUCK) CONNORS . . . a member of the Brooklyn club at the outset of the 1949 campaign, Chuck went back to Montreal in the early stages of the race . . . he hit a personal all-time high of .319 for the Royals, 12 points above his 1948 mark for the same club, and finished fourth among the International League's hitters . . . Chuck broke into baseball in the Brooklyn organization in 1940 out of Seton Hall College where he was a baseball and basketball star . . . drafted by the Yankee organization in 1941, Connors played at Norfolk in 1942, then was called into the service . . . he returned to baseball in 1946, was with Kansas City and Newark in the spring, then moved to Montreal on a waiver claim . . . sent to Newport News on option, he led the Piedmont League in homers that year though appearing in only 119 games . . . three of his round-trippers came in one game . . . Chuck played at Mobile in 1947, advanced to Montreal the following year . . . in the 1948 play-offs a 10th-inning grand-slam homer against Syracuse overcame a four-run deficit and kept the Royals in the series . . . he's married.

Bill Cox

One of the highlights of the Brooklyn spring training season was the versatile playing of WILLIAM RICHARD COX at all four infield posts . . . in spite of two unimpressive seasons at the plate for the Dodgers in 1948-49, Cox is rated highly on the strength of his speed, defensive ability, potential power at bat . . . ankle injuries handicapped him in 1949, but he sparkled in the field at third base when in the lineup . . . Bill blasted eight homers during the season—all into the left field seats at Ebbets Field . . . has been one of the most difficult hitters in the loop to strike out, ranking second-best on the club in his two Dodger seasons in strikeout percentage . . . in his four complete seasons in the league since his return from service he has gone down on strikes an average of only 20 times a season, or once for every 5.5 games he has played . . . after leading the Class B Inter-State League in hitting in 1941 in his second professional season with Harrisburg, Cox was called up to Pittsburgh at the tail end of the year . . . it was not until 1946 that he played another professional game, the Armed Forces calling before the 1942 season . . . though ailments incurred in his service in the Pacific bothered him, he had two fine seasons with Pittsburgh in 1946 and 1947 . . . an off-season trade brought him to Brooklyn in 1948 . . . Cox is married . . . has a daughter, Cynthia.

Dee Fondy

Making his debut as a Dodger this season, DEE VIRGIL FONDY (JR.) in four seasons in pro ball has performed with distinction in the California, Piedmont, Texas and Southern Association circuits and in addition saw service briefly in the International League . . . one of the top speedsters in the Brooklyn organization Dee "carries the mail" winter and summer . . . off-seasons find him in Uncle Sam's postal service . . . during the summer he practices on the base paths as his average of 32 stolen bases for the past three seasons attests . . . Fondy broke into organized baseball in 1946 upon discharge from the service, batting .335 at Santa Barbara in 59 games . . . he upped that mark by two points at Newport News in 1947, topped the Piedmont League in stolen bases and triples . . . continuing his steady advance toward the majors, Dee moved to Fort Worth in 1948, hit AA pitching for a .328 average and topped the league's batsmen in hits with 193 . . . a native of Texas, Dee now lives in California . . . he's married.

Buddy Hicks

A standout shortstop at St. Paul for each of the past two seasons, CLARENCE WALTER (BUDDY) HICKS is one of those versatile infielders who is equally at home at second, third, or short . . . named to the American Association's All-Star teams in 1948 and 1949, Buddy was an All-California State High school star when first spotted by Dodger scouts in 1944 . . . he signed with Montreal, played at Newport News and Trenton that season . . . then came two seasons in the service . . . a civilian again in 1947, Buddy played that year at Spokane, starring at shortstop, alongside Bobby Morgan, then a hot-corner guardian . . . Buddy hit an impressive .334 for Spokane, compared to Morgan's .293 . . . he successfully made the jump from Spokane (Class B) to St. Paul (AAA) in 1948, batted .296 against Association hurling and as the Saints' lead-off man batted in 61 runs . . . last season Buddy's percentage dropped to .268 but nonetheless he was an effective batter drawing 112 walks and hitting safely 142 times . . . Buddy is married . . . is one of several Dodger daddies-to-be during the current campaign.

Gil Hodges

In his first full season as a firstbaseman in 1949, GILBERT RAY HODGES broke into the record books with a bang . . . equalled two all-time Brooklyn records . . . his 23 homers tied the previous high for a Dodger righthanded hitter set by Hack Wilson in 1932 . . . his league-leading .995 fielding average tied the all-time Dodger high set by Dolph Camilli in 1938 . . . he also tied for the league's longest 1949 hitting streak, connecting safely in 19 consecutive games . . . Gil was one of the two Dodgers to play in all of the club's games, missing only five innings at first base . . . honored by being selected to play on the 1949 N. L. All-Star Team . . . his first professional game was with the Dodgers as a thirdbaseman in the final game of the 1943 campaign . . . shortly afterwards Gil was in the Marines, not returning to baseball until 1946 . . . was the All-Star catcher that season for Newport News club . . . in '47 served as third-string receiver for Brooklyn . . . saw considerable catching action at start of 1948 season before shifting to first base in July . . . clicked immediately as defensive stand-out . . . Gil attended St. Joseph's College (Indiana) for two years . . . married to a Brooklyn girl in winter of 1948, is now a year-around Brooklynite . . . was the last of the Dodgers to reach Vero Beach this spring, as the arrival of Gilbert Ray II delayed his departure from Brooklyn until March 17th.

John Jorgensen

Though not used frequently last year JOHN DONALD (SPIDER) JORGENSEN delivered nobly when the chips were down . . . called upon to alternate at third base with Miksis in the final month of the season when Cox was injured, Jorgy more than filled the bill . . . from September 1st until the end of the campaign he hit at a .320 pace (16 hits in 50 times at bat), his stickwork helping to win a number of crucial games . . . his only 1949 homer was hit against Ewell Blackwell at Cincinnati, with a runner on base, enabling the Dodgers to win 2-1 . . . he has been an effective hitter in his home park, clubbing .286 at Brooklyn in 1949 . . . his lifetime Ebbets Field average is .297 . . . Spider broke into baseball in 1941 with the Class C Santa Barbara club, finishing third in the batting race with .332 average . . . his career was then interrupted by four years in the Service . . . looked so good at the Brooklyn organization's Sanford (Fla.) spring training camp in 1946 that he was promoted to Montreal . . . clicked for the Canadian club and moved up to Brooklyn in 1947 where he was the regular third baseman for the pennant-winning Dodgers . . . an ailing throwing arm prevented Jorgy from playing regularly in 1948 and he was sent to St. Paul during the season, returning for the 1949 campaign . . . is married and the father of an infant daughter, Jonel.

TEAM CAPTAIN

Pee Wee Reese Rated by many as the major league's No. 1 shortstop, Dodger captain HAROLD HENRY (PEE WEE) REESE at 30 is the club's only 10-year man . . . a brilliant performer for the Brooks ever since replacing Leo Durocher as a regular in 1940, Pee Wee is hopeful of reaching new heights this season by virtue of improved physical condition resulting from successful off-season surgery . . . 1949 in many ways was Reese's best to date . . . his .977 average in the field established a new all-time high for Brooklyn shortstops, bettering his own former .966 mark set in 1946 and tied in 1947 . . . Pee Wee last season was the National League's leading run scorer with 132, ranked second in walks (116) and in stolen bases with 26 . . . club records kept by Allan Roth, Dodger statistician, credited Pee Wee with one more steal to bring his two-year (1948-1949) stolen base total to 52 in 58 attempts, a remarkable .897 pilfering percentage . . . the best hitting shortstop in the National League last year, Pee Wee topped his rivals in batting average, slugging average, total bases, homers, runs batted in, runs scored, walks and stolen bases . . . Reese was the top vote-getter among National League shortstops in the BWA poll which picked the 1949 major league All-Star team . . . he started at shortstop for his league in the mid-season All-Star game, ranked fifth in the balloting for the senior circuit's MVP . . . hitting in the lead-off spot all last season, he batted in 73 runs, was an exceptional clutch hitter, driving home 30 out of a possible 52 runners from third base . . . his over-all average with men on base was .309 . . . Pee Wee came up to the Dodgers from Louisville after only two seasons in the minors, has made Brooklyn his summer home ever since, except when in the service (1943-1945) . . . Reese's nickname traces back to his proficiency at marbles when a youngster, not to diminutive stature . . . Pee Wee's married, has one daughter, Barbara Lee.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER

Jackie Robinson The first righthand hitting Brooklyn player ever to win the National League batting title, JACK ROOSEVELT ROBINSON achieved that distinction last season with a .342 average—a feat that had much to do with winning him MVP honors . . . in addition to topping the circuit in hitting, Jackie paced the loop's speedsters in stolen bases (37) and tied for the lead in sacrifices with 17 . . . afield Jackie tied an N. L. record for games participated in by a second baseman in a single season—156 . . . he also figured in more double plays than did any other 1949 National League keystone—119 . . . in all Jackie topped the Dodgers in 11 different departments of offensive play and, in addition to his league-leading records, ranked well up among the loop's pace setters in other respects . . . he was second in total hits, RBI and hit by pitched balls; ranked third in runs scored, doubles, triples and slugging percentage; fifth in total bases, and seventh in bases on balls

. . . in his three seasons with Brooklyn, Jackie has led the club each year in hits, singles, doubles, total bases and in being hit by pitched balls . . . in two of the three years he also topped his mates in runs, triples, RBI and stolen bases . . . Robinson's N. L. batting championship was his second such honor in four years, a .349 percentage winning him International League laurels in 1946, his freshman year in pro ball . . . in addition to his Most Valuable Player award, Jackie was named to the second base position on both the National and Major League All-Star teams, he played on the N. L. team in the annual All-Star Game, was named the "Baseball Player of the Year" by Sport Magazine . . . a busy 1949-1950 off-season saw him dividing time as a salesman, sportscaster, YMCA worker and movie actor . . . Jackie is married, has two children—Jackie Jr., aged three, and an infant daughter, Sharon Annetta—born last January.

Eddie Miksis

One of the truly versatile players in baseball today is EDWARD THOMAS MIKSIS . . .

Eddie was the only player in the N. L. to play all four infield positions during the 1949 season . . . not only did he perform at the four posts, but he played them all well . . . his combined fielding average for the year was .980 based upon 33 putouts, 66 assists, two errors (both at third base) . . . he has also seen outfield service (in 1947) during his major league career . . . in addition to being Manager Shotton's first choice as a utility infielder, Eddie's speed and fine base-running have frequently been utilized, as he has been the club's number one pinch-runner . . . when Cox was injured in early September, Miksis was called upon to fill in at third base, alternating with Jorgensen . . . he rose to the emergency by doing his best hitting of the season, batting at a respectable .275 pace until the end of the season . . . Eddie began his career in 1944 with Trenton, a Dodger affiliate, when just out of high school . . . so impressive was he that the Brooks brought him up during the season . . . he spent the 1945 campaign in the Armed Forces . . . discharged, he came back to the Dodgers and in the past four seasons he has been a real handy man for the club . . . he's unmarried.

Bobby Morgan

The International League's batting champion last season—and its Most Valuable Player as well—ROBERT MORRIS MORGAN is now in his second season on the Dodger roster . . . Bobby spent the 1949 campaign at Montreal, starring at shortstop for the Royals for the second consecutive season and upping his B.A. 71 points from .266 to .337 . . . Morgan broke into pro ball with Newport News in 1944 on graduation from high school . . . previously had distinguished himself in American Legion junior competition in his native Oklahoma City . . . Bobby finished the 1944 campaign at Olean, spent the next two years in the armed forces . . . returning to baseball in 1947 he advanced to Spokane, performed so well both afield (third base) and at bat that 1948 saw him at Montreal . . . Clay Hopper moved him to shortstop and he proceeded to sparkle at the comparatively new position . . . result—All-Star recognition in his first year in AAA, promotion to the Dodgers . . . Bobby went back to the Royals in 1949—this time as a major league optionee . . . 1950's another year, says Bobby eyeing a regular berth in the Brook infield . . . he's single.

Cal Abrams

"Consistency" is the word for CALVIN ROSS ABRAMS, a .337 hitter with Mobile in 1948 and again at Fort Worth last season . . . Cal opened the 1949 campaign as Brooklyn's regular leftfielder, got off to a slow start and was optioned to the Texas League club . . . a great "waiter", Cal's value at the plate is graphically demonstrated by the fact that in the past three seasons he has walked a total of 422 times . . . at Mobile in 1948 he drew 154 passes in 131 games breaking a long-standing Southern Association record, but none-the-less finished second to Charley Gilbert who walked 155 times in 15 more games . . . Cal was born in Philadelphia, moved to Brooklyn at an early age, attended James Madison high . . . he signed with the Dodgers' Olean farm late in 1942, batted .327 in 19 games . . . that was the extent of his baseball activity until he returned to civilian life in 1946 after three years in the service . . . Cal is married, has a two-year-old daughter (Ellen Sue).

Bill Antonello

A chance meeting in a Manhattan sporting goods store in the summer of 1946 brought Art Dede, Dodger scout, and WILLIAM JAMES ANTONELLO together for the first time . . . just out of the Navy, Bill was eager for an opportunity to break into pro ball . . . an Ebbets Field tryout followed and in short order Bill was playing shortstop for Daytona Beach, then a Dodger farm club in the Florida State League . . . Bill did well enough there to rate advancement to Newport News the following season, was converted to the outfield . . . he moved to Greenville in 1948, hit .284 in 106 games even though sidelined by an appendectomy for more than a month . . . his steady progress continued in 1949 at Mobile where he tied for league-leadership in doubles with 38 . . . Bill's 171 hits for the Bears last season were good for 274 total bases, his best power performance to date . . . appropriately enough this spring he became the first player to hit a home run out of the new Miami Stadium, blasting a 425-footer over the leftfield wall . . . a former Fort Hamilton high student, Bill is unmarried.

Tommy Brown

A major leaguer in 1944 when only 16, THOMAS MICHAEL (TOMMY) BROWN promises to be the youngest 10-year man in recent N. L. history . . . a Brooklyn boy, product of the Parade Grounds, he began the 1944 season with the Newport News, Piedmont League club, then managed by Jake Pitler . . . so impressive was his play that three months later the Dodgers brought him up and inserted him into the lineup at shortstop . . . in 1945 Tommy started with St. Paul . . . again was recalled in mid-season . . . 1946 found him in the Service . . . for the past three seasons he has been a Dodger . . . in addition to shortstop Tommy has also played third base, first base and the outfield and is now classified as a fly-chaser . . . last season he crashed the "select circle" rating for the first time in his professional career, hitting .303 . . . was effective as a pinch-hitter, his .389 average (seven hits in 18 times at bat) tying for the club lead . . . playing before the hometown folks seemed to affect Tommy's hitting as he was a much better batter on the road than at Ebbets Field, his away average being .391 last season . . . Tommy is one of the eligible bachelors on the club.

Carl Furillo

1949 was by far the best season of CARL ANTHONY FURILLO'S professional career . . . the strong-armed outfielder had indifferent success at the plate in the first part of the campaign, but then caught fire to spark the club down the stretch . . . before the game of August 8th his batting average was .269, but in his final 46 games he collected 78 hits in 181 times at bat for a .431 mark, enabling him to compile a season's average of .322, fourth best in the loop . . . in his 65 games after the mid-season All-Star Game Carl powdered the ball at a .371 clip . . . he found the homerun range late in the season, smashing seven in September, to go with his .436 average for the month . . . in spite of a painful groin injury he garnered seven hits in the final two crucial games at Philadelphia . . . injury, though, prevented him from seeing much action in the World Series . . . began his career with Pocomoke City in 1940, shifted to Reading and in 1942 he made the grade with Montreal . . . then came three years in the Army, mostly overseas (Guam and Philippines) during which he was awarded three battle stars . . . wore a Brooklyn uniform for the first time in 1946 and has been improving yearly since . . . was married in 1948 . . . has a son, Carl Anthony, Jr.

Gene Hermanski

Though injuries prevented him from playing regularly in 1949 EUGENE VICTOR HERMANSKI won recognition as the club's regular leftfielder . . . an ankle injury this spring retarded his training, but he is determined to hold the regular rating for the 1950 campaign . . . Gene showed improvement in all departments of play in 1949 over his previous seasons . . . offensively he missed the charmed 300 circle by only one point, defensively he had his best year . . . he ranked third in the league (tied with Snider) in stolen bases with 12 . . . his three-year record for steals is outstanding with 32 stolen bases to his credit in 42 attempts . . . in 1949 he finally found the hitting range at Ebbets Field where he had difficulty in past seasons . . . was the club's top hitter at home with an average of .369 . . . just as in 1948 he was the best walk-getter on the club based upon times at bat . . . as a pinch-hitter he was the Dodger leader, tied with Brown, with seven hits (including two homers) in 18 times at bat for a .389 average . . . since returning to the club in 1946 from duty in the Coast Guard, Gene's batting average has been climbing yearly . . . Gene was married shortly before the start of the spring training season, honeymooned in Florida before reporting to Vero Beach.

Jim Russell

A National League regular for seven straight seasons prior to 1950, JAMES WILLIAM RUSSELL is making it eight in a row on the strength of an exceptionally fine spring showing which won him promotion to the Dodgers from the Brooklyn-affiliated Montreal club which had acquired his contract from the Boston Braves in an off-season deal . . . Jim is confident that the change of scenery will make fans forget his 1949 record, poorest since he broke into pro ball in 1938, and see him return to his 1944 form . . . that season Jim batted an impressive .312 for Pittsburgh and his 181 safeties included 56 extra base blows . . . Jim's minor league high of .363 came in 1941—a season in which he paced the Southeastern circuit in doubles and stolen bases while starring for Meridian . . . on June 7, 1948 while playing for Boston, Jim tied a modern N. L. record by making four extra base hits in a single game .

George Shuba

The hitting sensation of the Dodgers' early 1950 spring exhibition games, GEORGE THOMAS SHUBA first appeared in a Brooklyn uniform in mid-season 1948 . . . brought up from Mobile of the Southern Association that year "Shotgun" hit .267 in 63 games as a National League freshman after blasting S. A. moundsmen for a .389 percentage . . . he produced a run-scoring single in his first major league at bat and started in left field for the Dodgers in 26 straight games until a knee injury sidelined him . . . George has the unique distinction of having played in the Southern Association in each of his six seasons in pro ball . . . with New Orleans in 1944 and with Mobile in each of the following five seasons . . . a product of a tryout camp conducted in 1943 by the Dodgers in his home town, George broke in as a second baseman and won All-Star honors at that position with Olean of the Pony League in 1944 after being transferred there from New Orleans . . . with the Oilers he hit a league-leading total of 14 homers in 105 games . . . last season at Mobile he doubled that figure while hitting .328 . . . George is one of the Brooks' bachelor boys.

Duke Snider

In 1949, his first complete season in the majors, EDWIN DONALD (DUKE) SNIDER made rapid strides towards developing into one of baseball's great all-around outfielders . . . he sparked defensively and offensively contributed the solid long distance left-handed batting punch which the club needed . . . his total of 23 homers, which tied him with Hodges for the team lead, was the most hit by a Brooklyn outfielder since Hack Wilson whacked that many in 1932 . . . Duke hit at least one homer in every park in the league . . . in fact he was the first player in the loop to accomplish this feat during the 1949 season, doing so by August 2nd . . . he was outstanding in the away-from-home contests, clouting 15 homers and compiling a .320 batting average . . . not until his 91st game of the season, on July 31st, did Duke make his first error . . . he tied with Hermanski for third place in the league in stolen bases with 12, behind only teammates Robinson and Reese . . . Duke was a brilliant athlete (16-letter man) in his high school days at Compton, Calif. . . . broke into pro ball under Jake Pitler at Newport News in 1944 . . . was in the Navy for a year and a half, returning to the game for Fort Worth during the 1946 season . . . had trials with the Dodgers in 1947 and 1948, but was not quite ready . . . he shone for St. Paul and Montreal in those seasons . . . Duke is married, and has an infant son, Kevin Bruce.

It was an unparalleled performance of unlimited variety and under circumstances that may never be repeated in this generation of fans.

OPENING DAY - 1890

PLAYERS' LEAGUE GAMES

OPENING AT BROOKLYN

Ward's Team Defeats the Phillies
After a Brilliant Game.

After many disappointments and hard trials, Capt. John Montcomery Ward saw the sun rise in all its splendor yesterday morning, and his pent up feelings gave way and he said: "This will be a glorious day, and from the Indians we will win the first game, of baseball playing will do it." He was true in his prophecy, for the Brooklyn Players' League team won the first game on the new grounds.

DODGERS' DIAL-LOG

As colorful as the club whose diamond feats he tells about is WALTER LANIER "RED" BARBER, Brooklyn's baseball "voice", who for the 12th season in succession is bringing Dodger home and road games to the club's followers via the airplanes.

A veteran of 16 seasons as a baseball broadcaster, Barber—with his assistants Connie Desmond and Vin Scully—began his 1950 baseball broadcasting with play-by-play accounts of Dodger exhibition games direct from Florida and will carry on through the Brooks' 154-game National League schedule.

Recognized as one of the nation's foremost announcers, Barber doubles in brass as sports director for the Columbia Broadcasting System. In addition to his coverage of Brooklyn games, Red is known throughout the country for his lucid descriptions of World Series and All-Star baseball games as well as grid classics every fall. Red is married, has one daughter.

Desmond, Barber's No. 1 aide in Dodger broadcasts since 1943, is now in his 19th season as a sportscaster. During that period he has covered all three New York clubs as well as two of the American Association teams. Connie is married, has two children, a son and a daughter.

Third and youngest member of the Dodger airplanes trio is Vince Scully, a 1949 Fordham University graduate who in his closing college days covered Ram football, basketball and baseball games over the school station after lettering for two years as an outfielder on the diamond. Vince is 23, single, makes his home in New York.

As in 1949, Dodger games are being broadcast this season over Radio Station WMGM (1050 on your dial) under the sponsorship of General Foods and the F. & M. Schaefer Brewing Co. Home games are telecast over WOR-TV (Channel 9).

In addition, General Foods will broadcast all Saturday home games over a partial CBS network.

Next best to being at Ebbets Field to see the Dodgers play is "keeping posted" through the eyes of Red, Connie and Vince.

FIGURATIVELY SPEAKING

"ABOUT THE 1949 DODGERS"

The Dodgers' first place finish marked the 10th time in the past eleven seasons that the club has ended the campaign up among the top three.

* * * *

Captain Pee Wee Reese goes into the 1950 season needing only 13 more games and 19 more hits to reach the 1000 mark in these departments for his lifetime National League career.

* * * *

"Lucky seventh" was more than just a term to the 1949 Dodgers, as in 78 home games the club tallied a total of 79 runs in that frame . . . this was the team's top total for any one inning, home or away, and was 41 runs more than the opposition scored in the first half of the seventh at Ebbets Field.

* * * *

Nine times during the campaign a Brooklyn hurler pitched a complete nine-inning game using less than 100 pitches . . . Newcombe turned the trick three times, Banta, Hatten and Roe each twice . . . the low for one game (84) was turned in by Newcombe, against the Cubs.

* * * *

The Brooks outthomered the opposition both at home and away—86 to 66 at Ebbets Field, and 73 to 59 on the road.

* * * *

In only nine of the 156 games in which he played did Robinson fail to get on base . . . Jackie had one streak in which he was a base-runner in 76 consecutive contests (May 24th to August 12th).

* * * *

The Dodgers played fine Sunday ball at Ebbets Field, winning eight of their 12 home contests on that day . . . on the road they won nine, lost six on Sunday, bringing their season's Sunday percentage to .630—identical with their average for the year . . . Tuesday was the club's best day—the Dodgers won 18, lost only four on that day.

* * * *

The Dodger staff had the distinction of allowing fewer hits than any other mound corps in the league for the fourth consecutive season . . . it was also the fourth time in the past five years that Brooklyn hurlers fanned more than did the pitchers of any other club.

* * * *

On two different occasions in the last campaign the N. L. champs made two homers on successive pitches, Snider and Robinson performing the feat once, Furillo and Cox also turning the trick.

* * * *

In his three N. L. seasons Robinson has stolen second base 65 times, third base 10 times, home on 13 occasions . . . he been out at home on attempted steals five times.

* * * *

The Dodgers haven't lost a season's series to Philadelphia since the 1932 campaign, and haven't dropped a season's series at the Philadelphia park since 1934.

* * * *

The Brooks made 49 safe hits on bunts (two more than their 1948 total) . . . Reese was the club's top man with 17 . . . replacing Robinson who had led in 1948 with 14.

* * * *

If the home night games in 1950 follow the pattern set in 1949, the fans should be home-ward bound by 10:58 p.m. . . . the average length of the 22 night games played at Ebbets Field last season was two hours and twenty-eight minutes.

* * * *

With 617 official times at bat Reese was up more often than any Dodger since Buddy Hassett batted 635 times in 1936.

* * * *

Furillo had more big days than did anyone else on the club, getting five hits per game twice, four hits per game on three occasions . . . Robinson topped the club in three-hit and two-hit games with 17 and 48, respectively, and Snider garnered one hit per game the most often—61 times.

* * * *

The Dodgers' complete game total of 62 was the best showing by a Brooklyn staff since the 1943 hurlers tossed 77 CG . . . only 44 rival fingers went the route against the Brooks.

* * * *

Ralph Branca received more walks, nine, than any other pitcher in the N. L. loop last year.

* * * *

Four Dodgers—Campanella, Snider, Furillo and Hodges—each clouted homers against all seven rival clubs, with Roy and Duke each hitting two or more against all teams.

* * * *

For the fourth consecutive season the Dodgers topped the league in stolen bases, and had the individual leader five times in the past eight seasons . . . they made six successful double steals, one triple steal . . . in 1948 the club made 18 double thefts, one triple theft.
